

Yazd

Yazd, situated in the desert of central Iran, is one of the world's oldest cities. Today it is a thriving yet traditional city of around half a million people. As well as being an Islamic centre Yazd is the most important surviving city for Zoroastrians. A fire temple and numerous towers of silence are to be found within the city and the pilgrimage site of Chak Chak is in the desert outside of town. Yazd has a very distinctive architecture that reflects its close relationship to the desert. Wind towers (badgers) are spread throughout the city and a sophisticated network of underground canals (qanats) bring water to the city from the surrounding mountains. The people of Yazd have a reputation for honesty and friendliness and will certainly make you feel welcome and help you come to grips with the Persian (=Farsi) language.

Silk Road

Silk Road Hotel, in the heart of Yazd's old city, has been open for three years and during this time it has become a magnet for independent travelers in Iran.

Situated in a beautifully restored traditional house, with rooms around a tranquil and verdant central courtyard, the hotel has a peaceful and friendly atmosphere that makes it an ideal place for language learning.

Silk Road Academy has recently opened in the hotel and offers one, two and three week Persian courses for beginner and intermediate students of the language, using a specially designed communicative methodology taught by trained native teachers. Also if you want to arrange your visa or other services, our travel agency Iran Silk Road can assist you with it.
